

Giorgos Hadjikallis was born in 1985 in Nicosia. He joined the Cyprus Employers & Industrialists Federation (OEB) as an Industrial Relations and Social Policy Officer in 2016.

Mr. Hadjikallis graduated from Kykkos A' Lyceum in Nicosia. He holds a Bachelor and Master's degree in Electrical and Computer Engineering from the School of Engineering of Patras University. He also holds an MSc in Financial Services (Cyprus International Institute of Management – CIIM) and an MBA (Open University of Cyprus)

His areas of professional activities and specialization includes labour relations and social policy, labour legislation, resolution of labour disputes, human resources management, health and safety at work, gender equality, employment of foreigners and related issues.

As part of his duties, he participates in various international and national bodies including, the Cyprus Social Insurance Council (Annual Leave Fund and Redundancy Fund Councils), the Cyprus Gender Equality Committee and a Member of Industrial Disputes Tribunal.

He represents OEB in conferences organized by European Organizations such as European Commission and Business Europe, as well as conferences organized by International Organizations such as the International Employers' Organization (IOE) and the International Labour Organization (ILO).